FOR HIS INTEREST in and assistance to the pioneer Chapter of Psychiatric Technicians at Warren State Hospital, Dr. John Urbaitis, assistant superintendent of the hospital, received an honorary membership in the chapter from president Gregg Borger. The presentation was made at the organization's annual banquet at the Moose Club

GROUND BREAKING CEREMONIES for the new St. John's Lutheran Church in Pleasant twp. were conducted before a crowd of over 100 members and friends Sunday morning.

The Rev. J. Edward Lilja, church pastor, is pictured turning over the first spade of earth. To his right is the Rev. Frederick B. Haer, of First Lutheran Church of Warren, and in the foreground is the Rev. Paul Daugler, mission superintendent of the Pittsburgh Synod.

A worship service in the church quarters at the Pleasant Grange Hall preceded the ceremonies.

CHRISTMAS POSTAL SERVICE. This is the outline of the route of approach to the new Drive-In Parcel Post Annex which the Warren Post Office is providing for the first time this year for the convenience of Christmas mailers.

ENTRY to the driveway will be off of THIRD AVE. ONLY. After the turn around the truck platform the motorist-mailer will bear to the left and stop at the Annex with the driver's window directly at the mailing window. Packages may then be handed to the clerk without leaving the car or even sliding across the seat.

After completing their mailing, motorists are to EXIT into LIBERTY ST. ONLY. Caution should be exercised in entering and leaving the driveway because of pedestrians and heavy traffic at both points.

Present plans call for the Drive-In to operate from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays beginning Dec. 1 and ending as circumstances require. However, in that the annex is for early mailers, it is likely the service will be discontinued by Dec. 17 or even sooner. The last minute mailers will be required to use the lobby windows, which means finding parking spaces, lugging packages and waiting in line.

It should be noted that no stamps will be sold at the Drive-In window, but Christmas cards (separated into IN-TOWN and OUT-OF-TOWN bundles) can be mailed at the new location. This brings the suggestion to buy your stamps early.

SWIMMING POOL CONFUSION

Inasmuch as those planning our swimming pool obviously had decided not to build the best, which we are convinced Warren can afford, we had decided to leave the subject alone. But when the pool plans threaten our already limited playground system we are quite prepared to fight, claw, and reveal the facts to what must be a completely confused public.

Warren has the strange habit of taking on every problem as though it had done no groundwork, lacked a plan, and had never heard of it before. This it did in respect to flood control and traffic direction. Now it is following the same blind policy in respect to the swimming pool.

About four years ago we paid the National Recreation Association to make a study of our community and to prepare a flexible, long-range plan for our play areas. The pool and other facilities would be fitted into this plan when the time arrived for their addition.

Some think the time now has arrived for the swimming pool, but they apparently have no knowledge of previous plans and are unaware of Warren's recreational outline. If the architect who recently visited Warren to advise the committee is truly a community planning expert, he should be the first to admit that he couldn't discuss an all-around plan without extensive study, and his publicized statements certainly revealed that he was unaware of existing plans.

We lack room and time to review the entire plan, but we will mention a few portions that apply directly to the construction of a swimming pool. Either they will refresh the public's memory or they will alert all to the fact that a study has been made and that a plan does exist.

The "expert" said that the new high school site would lack roads and water, and so would require higher expenditures than other areas. Didn't someone bother to tell him that a high school will be built there next year? Roads will be built and water will be available.

One hundred acres of land are involved in the high school site. This means plenty of parking room and the eventual development of the area for community use. What better situation for a swimming pool?

The visitor was quoted as saying that "only urban areas need consider picnic areas in their planning." We suggest the doubtful ones ask the Park Department about that. We have added many picnic tables to local parks and there is a demand for more. Crescent park often is overloaded with picnickers, and there now are plans to provide tables in other Warren parks.

Thoroughly discrediting the "expert" as far as this editor is concerned was the statement, supposedly made by him, that such sites as Memorial field "should be reserved for future industrial expansion."

If that was his only reason for opposing Memorial field he was so far out in the left garden his bleachers were showing. Memorial field is not going to be used for industrial expansion.

This community today has just half enough acres for play areas. Fill up those areas and you will have the boys and girls playing in the streets!

The fact is we need to buy more land for play purposes and already are blocked in the upper Fifth Ward. This large area lacks a playground for its small fry, and despite the fact that it is expanding in all possible directions, nothing is being done to save a plot for off-street play.

The suggestion that Mulberry playground be used for a swimming pool reveals the committee's complete lack of understanding concerning this problem and the plan to solve it. Mulberry playground is little enough without altering it into a swimming pool area.

The proposed plan for Warren calls for a minimum of five acres in the upper portion of the Fifth Ward. Fill Mulberry up with a pool, dressing rooms, showers, and adequate parking . . . what will be left for play equipment, softball diamonds, and the off-street winter sports area that is planned for its slopes?

This off-street winter play idea can be nicely managed in Warren, but it will require land. We sit in a valley which often offers problems. But there are advantages, one of which is the side-hill play areas that can be provided, something most communities completely lack. Mulberry is our first acquisition for this purpose.

The original plan for Warren's play future recommended that the high school should have both a playing field and swimming. Warren also owns a plan for the development of Memorial field which includes a hard-surfaced play area, wading pool, and possibly the addition of tennis courts, swimming, and adequate skating facilities.

Any "expert" on pools who is invited to discuss the problem for our enlightenment should first be enlightened himself. The pool should augment our facilities, not hamper them.

We also have heard talk about placing the pool on the South Side playground. Anyone who would make such a suggestion is completely in the dark concerning the facts. The South Side area is considered to be just half the size required to adequately serve its purpose. More land is needed and is being considered. But a pool there would have the opposite effect and also would provide parking and traffic problems that are unnecessary as long as we can avoid them.

The committee's recent "expert" also was quoted as saying that a combination outdoor-indoor pool can be afforded by very few communities. That is not an answer. We are well aware of the costs. What we need to know is how efficient it can be and how much will it cost.

If we can have 365 days of swimming, day and night, in place of an average of 65 days, we might find the extra cost well justified. We are convinced that we would be gaining six times as much swimming for far less than six times the cost. And who is this "expert" to say what Warren can afford?

Warren can well afford adequacy in anything it does. We are too prone to settle for second best when we very nicely can afford the best. If the best requires a gradual development, then let's have it that way.

We have missed the best by failing to plan our pool in connection with the school. This would have given us a better facility and would have cut some financial corners by teaming up shower and dressing rooms.

Failing in this we should not make the further mistake of reducing our existing playgrounds, already short of the need, to accommodate a swimming pool. There is ground on the high school site, Memorial field, and on the West Side, owned by the borough and not being used for play. Those are the sites which "experts" should be studying.

To be completely fair concerning the opinions of the adviser who recently was a guest of the swimming committee we must point out that we take issue only with the published quotations credited to him. They could be very much out of context. His complete opinion might be very different, but as reported to the public we must offer numerous contradictions which are quite obvious to the fully informed.

BUYERS' CORNER

GAS PROSPERS

Gas producing and distribution stocks are not hurting their owners. Common gas stocks climbed 31 per cent above last October's prices and set a new all-time high for the fifth consecutive month. Current dividends are up 6.3 per cent.

And if they could just hike those rates again more records would be broken and proudly publicized.

ANOTHER PAMPHLETEER

The FTC has cracked down on Economy Publishers, of Clearwater, Florida, for ads which lead unemployed people to believe they can have a job clipping papers, addressing envelopes, postcards, and lists. Actually the defendant is doing no more than attempting to sell his pamphlets, booklets, and other printed material.

POOR BALDY AGAIN

It seems all who are bald never will give up hope. Lanole Products, Inc., of Detroit, Mich., have been ordered to stop claiming they can prevent baldness. Most baldness is a male pattern and Lanole's several lotions, ointments, and shampoos will not prevent it from occurring to your poor, ailing, masculine noggin.

Just keep it clean and let your maturity and brains replace your beauty.

NOT FRENCH

LaVie En Rose is not "The favorite of fashionable Paris" nor "As French as the Champs Elysees" as advertised. In fact it was not made in France. Because people seem to be willing to pay fancy prices for la perfume Francois, the ads are unfair says the FTC.

MISLEADING SOLDIERS

The Kalan Uniform Co., Inc. is using a label so similar to the one allowed manufacturers whose clothing is authorized by the army that soldiers are being confused and are buying the unauthorized garments. Men in the service are advised to look closely. They may not be getting the GI goods for which they are paying.

NOT A REDUCER

You can't eat the rich food to which you are accustomed, plus "K-12", and lose weight. So charges the FTC and the makers of this product must stop claiming it will slim you down without a diet.

NATURAL OR UNNATURAL?

The FTC and Max Factor and Co., of Hollywood are having an exchange of charges and defense statements concerning the results of using "Natural Wave", a spray which the makers advertise will "change naturally straight hair to naturally curly hair."

Not so says the FTC and claims the statements in the ads are false.

Max Factor maintains they are not false and that the product will change hair structure to make naturally straight hair naturally curly.

We'll let you know how they come out. Meanwhile, we hope your curl doesn't.

GET ONE OF THESE?

The FTC has forbid the United States Asphalt Corp., of New York City, to misrepresent the availability and price of "Neva-Leak", a roofing material it distributes. Perhaps you have received such appeals in the mail.

The FTC's complaint of last July 11 alleged to be misleading advertising letters advising prospects "there are eight 55 gallon drums of Neva-Leak Asbestos Roof Coat 'over' from a shipment to Cleveland . . . we will allow you a substantial discount from our specification price of $1.85 per gallon. 25% off. This brings the price down to $1.39 per gallon. . . ."

The complaint charged that no sale had been made in the named locality but the company had made shipments to local warehouses for its own account; thus no overage existed there as a result of any sale.

The $1.39 offer was not a 25% reduction from the regular price because "Neva-Leak" always sold for less than $1.85, the complaint added.

FLUORIDATION SUPPORT came from the Warren pharmacists last evening when their membership approved a resolution approving fluoridation of the Warren water supply, and asking others to support it by urging their councilmen to approve fluoridation at the December meeting.

COUNTY LIBRARY plans continue to be formulated by a steering committee which has prepared a rough outline of ten possible routes, totaling 400 miles, to be covered by a bookmobile. Forty stops are on the routes, including 19 schools. There also may be some stations added. In fact numerous changes might be made in the final plan by the two boards and under the supervision of a librarian trained in this work. The major advantages of the ultimate plan is that the Warren library's store of books will be available to all county residents, and these plus many more to be added will be brought within the reach of prospective readers through regular trips by a bookmobile.

Though most boards in the county already have approved such a plan on at least two previous occasions, the present committee is assuring support by explaining the plan and asking for approval. Youngsville and Tidioute have approved the idea. Sheffield, Sugar Grove, and Russell are expected to do so.

Any group which wants information should contact Mrs. P. W. Coyle, at the Warren library, William Clinger, or Ernest Oviatt, who comprise the steering committee.

CHRISTMAS CHECKS in Warren must have been reduced by the recession. For the first time in many years the Christmas saving club totals in Warren have not increased. The amount placed in the mails Wednesday and to be received Friday is $733,017.75. The number receiving the checks will be 7474, for an average of $98.08. This is below the national average which is $103 per check.

It is believed that two influences are responsible for the lower figure. One is unemployment, or the fear of it. The other is the increased interest rates on savings accounts which many now wisely are using in place of Christmas savings.

Last year 7,981 people received $803,306. In 1956 it was $644,911 to 6,437 customers.

CLUB ENTERED. Warren Police had another case added to their books Monday when the Sons of Italy Club was robbed of $105 in currency. It was believed the job was done sometime between 3 a.m., when the man on duty left, and 10 a.m. A member passed the club in the forenoon and noticed the front door of the club was not securely locked, but it wasn't until the janitor arrived at 3:45 p.m. the burglary was discovered.

Authorities stated there was no evidence of outside entry.

CHANGING PHONES. Bell Telephone Co. reports that 5,900 phones out of 11,000 (or 54%) on the Warren exchange have now been changed to dial. A crew of 16 men under Jack O'Brien is handling the operation and expect to finish by January 15.

There are some 600 people the workmen have not been able to contact as they have been away during the day. A group will be working from 1 to 9 p.m. in an effort to make a contact.

The Warren exchange should be converted completely to the dial system by June of 1959.

CHAMBER DINNER. Ralph Marquis, director of Northeastern Forest Experimental Station of Philadelphia, will speak at a Chamber of Commerce dinner for business men and civic leaders on December 3.

EMPLOYMENT in Warren County was down during September and October, with a decrease of 37 or one-half per cent. The current job level for the 49 establishments contacted was considerably less than for 1956 and 1957. The differential from both dates, 600.

There were 782 persons receiving unemployment benefits during the last week of October. A year and two years ago it was 275 and 193 respectively.

GERALD WESTFALL, 18, R. D. 1, Tidioute, was charged with the stop sign violation and for traveling too fast for conditions after he crashed the sign at Buchanan st. and hit the side of a car operated by Dorothy Shattuck, 6 Monroe st., who was coming down Jefferson st. Property damage incurred was $550.

A NEW RECREATION and research training center of the U.S. Forest Service will be developed on the Biddle property near Irvine which was recently given the service.

The mansion and old stone houses at the site will be renovated and used as headquarters for the center. The project is to cost about $250,000.

WAR ON FICTITIOUS PRICES

The practice of exaggerating prices so that the actual figures look like a bargain is being attacked by many major business groups and trade associations, including the Better Business Bureau, the Chamber of Commerce, and those representing radio, television, and newspapers. They are supporting the Federal Trade Commission's drive to curb price trickery.

About 300,000 FTC pricing guides have been distributed by the Better Business Bureaus. The result is that many consumers have become aware that they have been taken, and 14,000 of them have flooded the FTC with letters and telegrams. Once the buyer becomes aware of the situation, the violators will find themselves reported by thousands of angry consumers.

TIONESTA DAM IS BUSY PLACE
About 669,000 people have visited the Tionesta dam reservoir area so far this year for sightseeing, picnicking, fishing, boating, and swimming. The army engineers are improving the parking facilities near the launching and docking area and also are surfacing the exit roadway. The Tionesta dam is one of ten dams and reservoirs which the engineers have completed out of an authorized seventeen.

NO VACCINE

Because there is no vaccine against tuberculosis Pennsylvania spends about $10 million a year to combat the disease. Tuberculosis is not something with which you are born, but is acquired from others in the form of a rod-shaped bug.

Though the number of cases increased over a thousand in Pennsylvania last year, this does not mean the disease is on the increase. It reveals only that more extensive work is being done to find those who have it. Mobile x-ray units and tuberculin tests are more widely used than ever before.

Dr. Wilbar, state health secretary, believes all tuberculosis patients should be hospitalized because it is the only way they can be assured the best of care. The average case costs about $15,000 per year, with the state footing the entire bill. Otherwise this infectious killer would prove a financial catastrophe to many families.

(On that basis there are victims of a few other diseases who could use more state help.)

STUDY THESE

The Governor's Traffic Safety Council probably will make at least eight recommendations to the legislature which the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association believes you should be studying. The eight are only part of a long-range program, but are considered to be the most important.

Here are the immediate proposals:
Periodic re-examination of drivers.

Control of off-highway glaring lights.

Enforcement of reduced gear operation by commercial vehicles on dangerous hills.

Legalization of radar for law enforcement.

Adoption of chemical tests to determine degree of intoxication.

Severe penalties for habitual violators of motor code.

Eliminate the need for "no passing" signs where the uniform system of center line markings is used.

Require magistrates to file conviction reports within ten days.

SOCIAL SECURITY INCREASES

Social security payments automatically move upwards next year and recipients should start seeing the difference in their February checks. The maximum monthly payment will increase from $200 to $254. Families now receiving maximum monthly payments will receive increases ranging from $3 to $54.

To cover these increases the percentage of payroll deduction will be increased. Employes will be nickel 2-1/2 percent. Those self-employed will pay 3-3/4 per cent. The top figure that is so taxed will be $4,800.

There also will be some who will qualify for security who do not receive such payments now. Many of these we already have mentioned. We may not have included the aged parent who was dependent on the worker and now can receive payments even if the worker was survived by a child or widow who also are entitled to payments.

ALCOHOLIC RETURNS

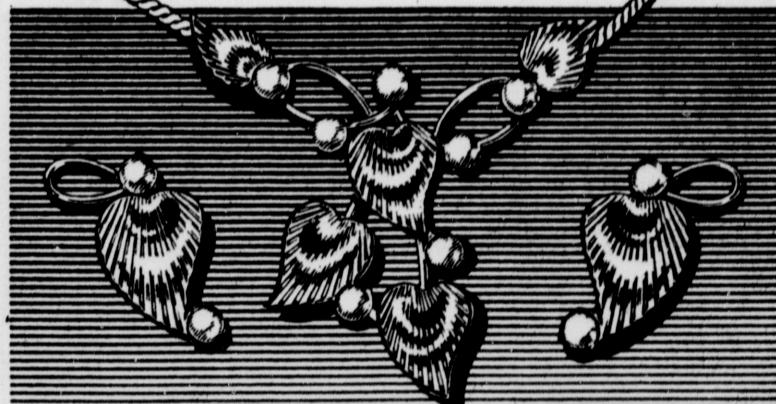

Since three-fourths of the Pennsylvania voters in 1933 revealed their preference for the repeal of prohibition, the state has collected about a billion and a half dollars in earnings and tax. The liquor stores have turned over a little more than one billion dollars in earnings and ten per cent to the general fund. And the tax on brewed beverages has produced $375 million.

RUNNING LOW

State unemployment funds have dipped to 152 million dollars, a drop of 217 million dollars from the 369 million in the fund a year ago. During the period from January 1 to November 14 the fund paid out 346 million. Concurrently the compensation contributions were 154 million.

LIBRARY RECOMMENDATIONS FOR PENNSYLVANIA AND WARREN COUNTY

(This is a first of a series which will give you the complete library news release concerning the study and recommendations made by Dr. Lowell A. Martin and his advisory committee.)

The recommendations of the Pennsylvania Library Survey are aimed at correcting the following deficiencies in library service in the State:

1. 2,161,526 Pennsylvanians now lack nearby, day-to-day service and must pay a non-resident fee for service at the nearest library available.

2. 5,771,527 Pennsylvanians have no information or guidance service within reach and no source of subject materials of sufficient strength to develop their serious interests.

3. 7,355,436 Pennsylvanians lack reasonable access to specialized research materials.

The proposed plan recommends basic minimum standards of library service which are not being met at present by a great number of libraries. These standards deal with matters of accessibility, the number and quality of library staff, minimum resources of books and other materials, minimum services (including number of hours open per week), and minimum financial support to assure a level of library service which meets present-day needs in Pennsylvania.

There are many recommendations in the report of the Survey. Essentially, they come down to a proposal for a coordinated system of public library service. Compared with total governmental expenditures, the cost of this service, which is useful to every person and every phase of activity in the State, would be relatively small -- a total of $21,000,000 annually, or slightly over one percent of public expenditures in Pennsylvania.

At present, about $8,700,000 is being spent in Pennsylvania for public library service, of which the state contributes about one percent. It is proposed that the state carry slightly more than 25 percent of total expenditures for library service and that the per capita expenditure be raised from the present $.83 to approximately $2.00.

This figure is below the $2.60 to $3.41 per capita expenditure recommended in the national standards of the American Library Association and which depends on varying conditions. It is below the $2.40 per capita spent in New York and the $2.68 per capita spent in Ohio. The lower cost in Pennsylvania would be possible due to built-in economies in the proposed plan.

The survey report recommends 27 district library systems coordinated by the State Library, and three distinct levels of library service -- local library service through the 360 public libraries now in existence and others whose formation would be encouraged, central service through the 27 district library centers, and special resource service through four very large libraries.

It has attempted to build upon strength now available, and to entail the minimum reorganization of the present structure of libraries in Pennsylvania. Each library would maintain its own independence and identity, but would cooperate with each other local library and with a district library center to form 27 true library systems.

The plan would provide for local, day-to-day service within 15 to 20 minutes of every resident in the State, a subject and professional library within an hour's distance, and a research library within a day's round trip with enough time to consult materials.

The most important element in the proposed plan is the designation of 27 district library centers which would open their doors to everyone within their districts free of charge. In all but five districts, these units would be built upon existing public libraries which are conveniently located and within an hour of all people in their districts.

These are to be agencies which show promise of meeting the standards for such libraries already, or in the near future. It is proposed that State aid be given them for extending their service areas. Each of these district library centers would be required to maintain an extension service directed at assisting the local libraries in its district to attain minimum standards.

Coordinating the local agencies into a cooperative system, it would extend interlibrary loan of materials, special reference and professional services to all local libraries cooperating in its system, in addition to deposits of books. Each system would be encouraged to develop central ordering of books to avail itself of maximum purchase discounts, and to experiment with

UNREAL BANG-BANGS

John Crosby, the television critic, made a constructive suggestion when he spoke in Warren that we believe offers a good solution to much that is unsatisfactory in the programs crowding the screen. He said that parents should question the characters which appear too far out of proportion in relation to the facts of life.

He was suggesting the creation of a spark of doubt and the development of intelligent criticism within the family circle at a tender age so that all which is seen on television is not accepted complacently. Much that is ridiculous on television would be undermined by intelligent attack.

The most susceptible in this respect are the Westerns which are surfeiting the tv waves. The fast-gun characters are unreal even to a plush-seated easterner, and are easily upended from their ornate saddles.

We enjoy a good Western nearly as much as the youngest enthusiast. Most of us enjoy adventure and of course we do not have much opportunity to participate. Few of us would if we could, but vicariously we "live" the parts of those who do it for us in books, on the stage, across the movie screen, and on tv.

Because we are inclined to instinctively place ourselves in the part which we are watching, the guy with a gun on his hip and a potential killer behind every swinging door has to express our own reflexes and reactions or he becomes a bit ludicrous.

Perhaps this is the way to help all of us, including the young viewers, to see the lack of authenticity and to realize how poor a form of entertainment we often are expected to accept. If we can place ourselves in the part of the man under the twenty-gallon chapeau we can see how unreal he usually is.

The average tv gunslinger doesn't make us feel as though he were walking down the center of Cowtown with dry gulchers leaning on every hitching post. He looks as though he might be walking down the middle of a studio street with blanks in all guns involved. If we can undermine the blind faith in these so obviously not tough idols, a demand for honest drama might run them to cover.

We find it difficult to abide the hero who constantly makes himself vulnerable to the simplest plots on his life when he is supposed to be an individual so alert that he survives the machinations of all who are evil. He is doing everything we instinctively would not do, and he survives only because a script writer blesses him with every conceivable good break that can be imagined. He is not a true hero. He is a lucky boob.

Bat Masterson complicates his gun play and risks his split-second life by carrying a cane. He starts each episode by knocking people over the head with this instrument. Later he sets it aside and shoots them full of holes. A man so hated by the bad people, raps them on the skull, then turns his back and walks away. None of the villains shoots him in the back.

Concussion is not a malady of the television world. The hero has his skull slugged with everything from ball bats to gun barrels. He comes to, shakes his head, runs a straight line to his goal, fights with unhindered strength, and smiles with romantically clear eyeballs as he presses the pretty one to his lips.

A conk on the head is like a mild sedative which wears off shortly and leaves our boy clear-minded and full of enough energy for anything, and, in fact, everything. And the same day, too.

It causes us to shrink with fear when our man fails to act like a cat. Instead of moving with alertness and the spring of one who is expecting assailants on all sides, he walks down the street with a casualness that would get him run over by a horse in real life.

One law man recently told an apparent coward off in a hotel room, then walked downstairs, out the door, and across the street with his back to the window of the unscrupulous killer who obviously was one who would delight in placing lead between an opponent's shoulders.

This same target for all gun-slingers walked around the streets with his hat pulled down over his eyes and his head bent downward. He made us so nervous we nearly called our insurance man to double our double indemnity.

Even a man with a butterfly net is alert and ready for the move which will gain him a beauty. But some of these fellows stand ready for the other gent to draw and are so flat-footed they look pained.

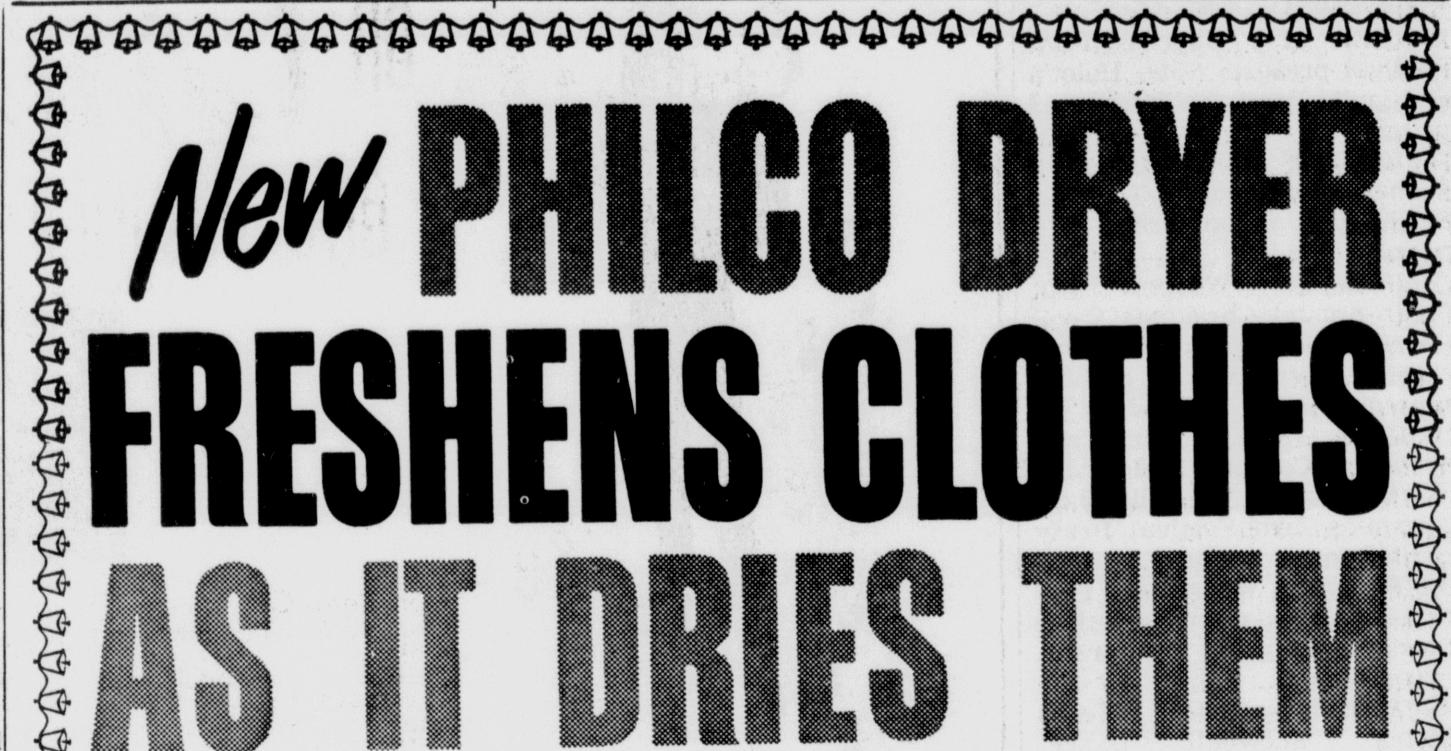

Our back creeps when the man who is living our part sits down with his back to a door or even to the rest of the room. In his chaps we never would have a slight draft between our backbone and the wall.

But of course in his boots we might as well admit there is only one move in which we can imagine ourselves involved. That would require a fast horse, a cloud of dust, and a press pass from Sitting Bull.

TE LA DI OBUFFALO'S NEW TV STATION
HITS THE AIRWAYS SUNDAY

WKBW-TV, Buffalo's newest television station, will begin broadcasting at 3 p. m. Sunday on Channel 7. Programming will include the full ABC-TV network schedule, plus timely local features, news and weather.

The transmission tower, located at Colden, N. Y., is 1078 feet high, the highest in western New York, and will be capable of sending a clean picture signal to nearly all home receivers in western New York, southern Ontario and northwest Pennsylvania. Its power is listed at 71.1 kw video ERP.

Your Observer TV Editor is receiving WKBW-TV's weekly schedules and these will be listed in the regular television program section when there is indication that Channel 7 is being received in the Warren county area.

WGR-TV REPLACES ABC PROGRAMS WITH NBC Starting Sunday, Nov. 30, WGR-TV, Channel 2, severs its affiliation with the American Broadcasting Company to become entirely NBC. Many area viewers will be missing some of their favorite programs unless WKBW-TV, Channel 7, is added to cable reception.

LOOKING AHEAD BORIS PASTERNAK is the subject for a "Circle Theatre" drama which CBS is preparing for presentation in January or February. The one-hour play is to be titled "The Ordeal of Boris Pasternak" and will probably include the Russian writer's experiences from the time he submitted the manuscript of his novel, "Dr. Zhivago", to an Italian publisher in 1954 until his recent refusal to accept the Nobel Prize for Literature.

THE GREAT LEAP FORWARD is the title of a documentary film on Red China which NBC will telecast Jan. 4, 4:30-5 p. m. Filmed by John Strohm, the first correspondent permitted entrance into Red China since the Formosa crisis, the program will have Cecil Brown, NBC's Tokyo correspondent, as commentator.

TEN LITTLE INDIANS, an NBC Special scheduled for January 13, is an adaptation of murder mystery writer Agatha Christie's novel "And Then There Were None".

BRAINS AND BRAWN is rumored to be on the way out, pending a decision to be made this week by sponsor Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company. If the quiz show is given the thumbs down sign it will probably be terminated late in December. A possible replacement is said to be a film series, "The D. A.'s Man", produced by Jack Webb.

RADIO NEWS

NBC RADIO has announced that it will continue its regular network programming and make no retreat as other networks have indicated they plan to do. Several major systems are considering curtailment of daytime programs leaving the field to local radio stations. (Editor's note. Though NBC may sound optimistic now, it retrenched several months ago, and so extensively that 600 people were dismissed.)

WBEN-FM plans to resume broadcasts this week after being off the air for the past several weeks during installation of a higher tower and other improvements which include a doubling of its power. The radio station also has a new place on your FM dial, 102.5 mc.

METROPOLITAN OPERAS will be broadcast Saturday afternoons at 2 p. m. starting this week end. The 20 matinee performances may be heard on WBEN in this area, 930 on your dial. The first performance will be Bizet's "Carmen", starring Rose Stevens, Richard Tucker and Hilde Gueden.

DIAL SPINNERS

VISIT WITH SANTA will be televised weekdays at 5 p. m. starting Friday on WBEN-TV and continuing until December 24. Puppets and elves will add to youngsters delight. Santa will read letters received from his young viewers. Mail should be addressed to Santa Claus, WBEN-TV, Buffalo 2, N. Y. Santa will answer all letters if return address is included.

EXPLORING WITH HOPE, starring Bob Hope as emcee, is a live program on WJAC Saturday afternoon, 4:30-5:30. Presented in cooperation with the Boy Scouts of America, it is designed to encourage high school boys to join the new Boy Scout Explorer program. Featured will be Ben Alexander, Molly Bee, Bob Mitchell Boys Choir, Les Brown and His Band, and Damiani and his Starlight Symphony.

VICTOR BORGE, the famed pianist-comedian, will star in an all-new production of his hilarious "Comedy and Music" Saturday night, 9-10:00, on CBS channels. Guests will be featured, including Alicia Markova, world-famous prima ballerina who will dance a ballet solo to Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata".

STEVE CANYON will present an episode Saturday night at 9:00 on the NBC network in which recently declassified Air Force films of the historic H-bomb tests at Bikini two years ago will be shown.

ADVENTURING IN THE HAND ARTS will be seen at 1 p. m. Sunday on WJAC. This is the program produced in cooperation with Girl Scouts of America. "Weaving and Man's Dress" is the subject of Sunday's episode.

NEW YORK PHILHARMONIC CONCERT, with Leonard Bernstein conducting, will premiere on the CBS network Sunday, 5-6 p. m. This is the first in the once-a-month series and will feature Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. Soloists will be Leontyne Price, Maureen Forrester, Leopold Simoneau and Norman Scott. The Westminster Choir, of Princeton, N. J., will also be heard.

NBC KALEIDOSCOPE, 5-6 p. m. Sunday on NBC, will present "Showplace of the Nation", the behind-the-scenes and on-stage activities of Radio City Music Hall in New York.

SMALL WORLD, Sunday at 6 p. m. on CBS, will feature intercontinental telephone conversations between host Edward R. Murrow and his interview guests, Harry S. Truman, former President of the U. S., and Richard Clement Attlee, former Prime Minister of Great Britain.

20TH CENTURY will present a special two-part report on drug addiction titled "The Addicted". In Part One, to be seen Sunday on CBS from 6:30-7 p. m., "Profile of a Young Addict" will tell the case history of a real-life victim struggling to shake the habit and return to normal life.

JACK BENNY will have Oscar Levant as his guest Sunday night at 7:30 on CBS.

WONDERFUL TOWN, a special two-hour musical comedy starring Rosalind Russell will be televised by CBS Sunday night from 9 to 11 p. m. Five members of the original Broadway cast will appear, with music by Leonard Bernstein.

LUCILLE-BALL DESI ARNAZ SHOW is a Monday night hour-long special on CBS. Danny Thomas and his television family will be guests.

"Our guests tell us our street is much brighter—more cheerful—since it's been paved with concrete!"

Concrete reflects up to 4 times as much light as a dark surface.
You'll notice the difference! Street lighting is much more effective... headlights, too. You feel safer at night—walking or driving.

Concrete is the safety pavement day or night, in any kind of weather. Its grainy surface gives dependable skid resistance, even when it's raining. No roughness, no potholes to watch for—you're always in control of your car.

A concrete street is a sound investment... it makes your house worth more. Your concrete street will have a life expectancy of 50 years and more. It saves tax money on upkeep costs. Yet initial cost is moderate.

These are the reasons more and more families are getting together with their neighbors... and requesting concrete streets.

Planning to buy or build?

Choose a house on a concrete street. You'll always be glad you did. Only concrete can be precisely engineered to traffic load requirements. It stays smooth-riding and attractive and has an expected life of 50 years and more.

TREASURY AGENT: S.S. Agent Guarding President Must Be Cop And Psychiatrist, Diplomat And A Beau Brummel

This is the last in a series of articles taken from "Treasury Agent," just published by Simon and Schuster, Inc., and written by Andrew Tully, well-known newspaperman.

BY ANDREW TULLY

THE QUALIFICATIONS for a Secret Service agent assigned to the White House detail are prescribed in technical language somewhere, but it is possible to boil them down. A man guarding the President must be part cop, part psychiatrist, part diplomat and part Beau Brummel.

Americans, quite properly, don't want their President hemmed in by a squad of soldiers or by a herd of plug-ugly bodyguards. They want him to have protection but they want the people doing the protecting to be as inconspicuous as possible, in accord with the principles of the Republic.

The Secret Service has met these democratic requirements as nearly perfectly as possible.

Secret Service agents assigned to the White House detail are young men, usually fairly handsome and well constructed. They wear good clothes and speak good English, but they speak only when spoken to. Most of them are college graduates with a background of investigative work.

They carry their guns inconspicuously, usually in shoulder holsters beneath their jackets. Their boss at this writing is James J. Rowley, a Bronx Irishman with a broad, handsome face and an affable disposition.

It is Rowley's premise that the President should receive complete protection without the protectors either intruding on his privacy or depriving the citizenry of the right to see their elected chief.

"The President is the President of everybody," he is fond of saying. "We have no right to hide him from the public or push anybody around who wants to see him so long as we're sure he's being protected."

It would be most unfortunate for an assassin to test this casualness, however. Every Secret Service agent is an expert in judo and a sharpshooter with his revolver. He is an expert, also, at firing machine guns, rifles and other weapons. He passes frequent physical examinations. If he fails them, he is transferred to other duties less exacting.

He is taught lifesaving -- Presidential families sometimes go swimming -- fire-fighting and first aid, and understands the principles of the Geiger counter. Periodically he attends lectures on mental illnesses at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington and he observes patients and their traits. Some agents now are learning how to land a helicopter, in case something happens to the pilot when the President is in one.

Wherever the President goes, there goes the White House detail. The agents are with him on the golf course; one SS man carries a golf bag containing a submachine gun and a two-way radio. They are with him when he goes fishing or when he attends one of those exhibitions at Griffith Stadium advertised as a baseball game.

When he attends a formal dinner, the agents don white tie and tails and go along, and they are at his side when he addresses a joint session of Congress. No reporter is admitted to a Presidential press conference unless he first has been screened by the SS and submitted to fingerprinting.

The Secret Service's job starts in the morning when the President is planning to attend a theatre in the evening. With firemen and policemen, they inspect the theater for fire and construction hazards.

and go over every inch of the Presidential box or the orchestra section where he will be seated.

They also go into the background of every actor appearing in the play and every stagehand and theater employee who will be on hand during the performance.

A hotel is given a similar casing when the President is scheduled to make a public speech there. Three more agents are stationed in and around the Mayflower Hotel ballroom when the President makes a speech in that Washington caravansary; that is because, unlike, say, the Statler, the Mayflower ballroom has a balcony.

Problems multiply when the President travels, but the Secret Service meets them by hewing to several key rules: Keep the area around the President clear of strangers. Allow no one to loiter behind pillars or trees. Permit no stranger to approach the President. Keep the President's car moving at a good clip when he is driving through a crowd.

Always, of course, a Secret Service car trails closely behind the Presidential automobile, and when the President's car slows down the agents hop out and walk alongside it. The President's car always is driven by an SS man, usually a rangy, tough-muscled man named Dick Flohr; Jim Rowley sits alongside him in the front seat.

The President has four cars -- a 1950 Lincoln, two Cadillac sedans and one Chrysler sedan. The Lincoln is the famous "bubble top" -- that is, the rear roof is of clear plastic so the President will be visible to crowds even when it is too cold to open the top. One of the Cadillacs and the Chrysler have sliding tops in the rear so the President can stand and wave to the crowds.

One President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, rode for many months in a rather notorious automobile. It was shortly after Pearl Harbor, and Mike Reilly, then head of the White House detail, was searching for a car which would give the President the added protection he needed in wartime.

Mike found it, and shortly FDR summoned him and said he wanted to go for a ride. "I can't hide forever, Mike," he told the SS man with a grin.

So an Agent drove the car around to the South Portico, where FDR was leaning on Mike's arm. The President stared at a huge, heavy-set Cadillac.

"What on earth is that thing, Mike?" he asked.

"It's your new car," Reilly told him. "It doesn't ride very smoothly and it's got a dubious reputation, but it's built like a fort. It used to belong to a man named Al Capone, who had it upholstered with armor and bulletproof glass. I got it from the Treasury; the boys seized it when they sent Al to jail for income-tax evasion."

FDR grinned. "Well, Mike, I hope Mr. Capone won't mind."

Another creation of the fertile Reilly brain was seldom used by Dwight Eisenhower. This is the "Ferdinand Magellan," now retired, the armored railroad car in which Roosevelt and Harry Truman both traveled many thousands of miles.

The windows are three inches thick and bulletproof and the car has an extra-thick floor of case-hardened armor steel as protection against an explosion under the car. At the time it was built, the Pullman Company claimed the car would remain intact if dropped from a railroad trestle.

On the rare occasions when President Eisenhower used the car, a pilot train usually ran just ahead of the Presidential train. The idea was that if anybody had planted a bomb, the pilot train would explode it. On train trips guards are placed on all bridges as a precaution against anybody's dropping a bomb on the train as it passes. Switches and other equipment are inspected and guarded.

Similarly, Eisenhower's pet mode of transportation, the big Lockheed Constellation, Columbine III, is under 24-hour guard wherever it goes, although here the responsibility rests with the Air Force.

Sometimes there is a kind of wry comedy resulting from Secret Service's thoroughness in protecting the Chief Executive. For instance, whenever the President is planning to stay overnight, or longer, in a hotel, the agents always check the occupants of rooms on the same floor as the Presidential suite.

On a recent occasion they pursued this routine check of a certain Mr. X from, say, Detroit, who was registered in a room with the President.

When FDR met with Churchill and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in Cairo in November 1943, the

"Mrs. X."

Detroit was asked to inquire as to whether the X's indeed were out of town. Back came the answer: "Mr. X away on business, Mrs. X now in Detroit."

Frequently, foreign agencies, especially British, are inclined to scoff at the conscientiousness shown by the SS in guarding the President. Britons, with their fetish for personal privacy, feel the SS sometimes overdoes it.

During World War II, security officers at the British Embassy were particularly stubborn when the Secret Service wanted to take extra precautions in guarding Winston Churchill when he was to leave for England following a visit with President Roosevelt.

The SS wanted a White House car to ferry Churchill to the Anacostia Naval Station in Washington, only four miles from the White House, and have him take a government plane. The British wanted him to take a British Overseas Airways plane at Baltimore, where there was a BOAC base; it was felt Churchill's appearance would be good for morale. The British won, and on the appointed day Churchill was driven to the airport in Baltimore.

When his car pulled in, Mike Reilly got out and asked the Prime Minister to remain in the car for a moment while he checked to see if everything was all right. As Reilly walked toward the plane, he saw one of his SS agents, Harold Chandler, grappling with an armed man at the foot of the ramp.

"This guy wants to shoot Churchill!" Chandler yelled to Reilly.

They hustled the man off and later he was committed to a mental hospital.

Roosevelt, with his wartime travels, gave the Secret Service a lively time.

When FDR met with Churchill and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in Cairo in November 1943, the advance detail of SS agents was appalled the situation in that seething city. The town was filled with Axis spies and the market price for murder was $25. For $10 an Arab would guarantee to provide 1,000 natives to put on a demonstration.

The conference was to be held in a compound in the Mena district at the foot of the Gizeh Pyramids, so a barbed-wire entanglement was put up surrounding the district, and American and British soldiers were set to guard it.

Since reconnaissance photos showed a heavy concentration of German aircraft on the island of Crete, the island was bombed heavily by Allied aircraft both before and during the conference. Meanwhile, hardly a day went by that hundreds of natives didn't demonstrate wildly in front of the British, French and American embassies. Incredibly, there were no incidents during the conference.

Herbert Hoover, who fretted considerably about the restraints put on him by his protectors, once summed up this fact of life for United States Presidents during a conference with British Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald at Hoover's fishing camp on the Rapidan River in Virginia.

As MacDonald conversed with Hoover, he noticed a Secret Service man leaning against a nearby tree.

"That man can hear what we're saying," he told Hoover. "Hadn't you better tell him to go away?"

Hoover cleared his throat, "He won't go," he said.

"Why not?" asked MacDonald.

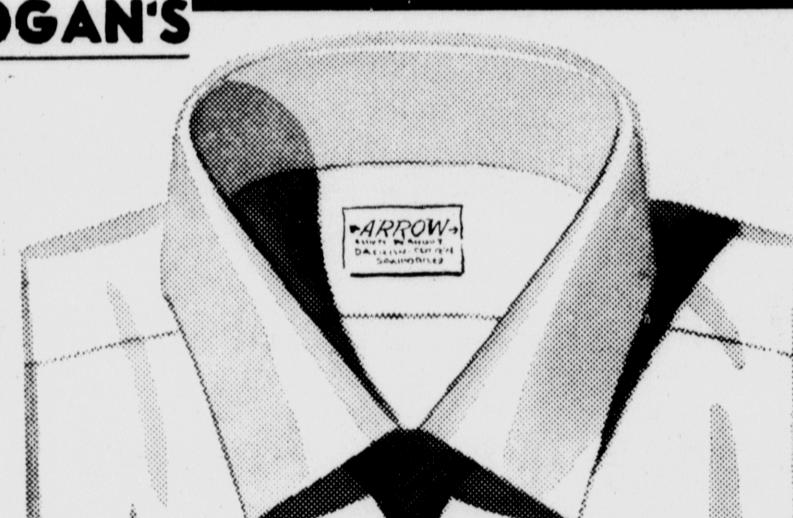

"Who is he?"

"He's a Secret Service man," Hoover told his guest. "They have to watch me. It's the law."

Neurosis For Fun and Profit

Wayne and Shuster, the Canadian comics, were on the march again a week ago yesterday and I must say they were mighty, mighty funny in a long, long sketch about a guy who gets hooked by television watching. The idea of this caper was that TV watching was more habit-forming and, on the whole, worse for you than heroin. This pair of comics, when they get hold of an idea, elaborate it in all directions with plot and settings and a beginning, middle, and an end. I find this sort of thing very engrossing, largely because no one else is doing it. No one except Sid Caesar ever did sketches that were as careful and pretentious. Their humor is generally about something and it has a deadpan pertinence that is wonderfully pointed and funny.

Right on their heels, Sid Caesar appeared on the Dinah Shore show, in what was billed as his first guest appearance, and he was mighty funny, too, in a longish sketch about a gangster romance in the 20's. This sounded like a takeoff on all the old gangster movies Warner Brothers ever made. I particularly liked the final curtain with Miss Shore, arms around the dead gangster (played by Caesar), crying "Now maybe somebody will do something about slum clearance." Remember all that social significance we had to put up with in the '30s?

exhibitionism doesn't have to be neurotic. They can be neurotic in the magazines. I'm not sure I'd rather not keep the neuroses in the magazines, too. Far from being right-thinking and lovable, the popular idols are almost leaning too far the other way. I won't go so far as to say they're inventing these neuroses but I've long suspected their press agents of fabricating them. It's almost as much as your career is worth to palm yourself off as well-adjusted in Hollywood these days.

"I'm a free-lance photographer. It's fun, money and people," says Mike Kovac, explaining his job on a show called "Man With a Camera." Nat Fein, the Herald Tribune's Pulitzer Prize winning photographer, has already complained that picture-taking doesn't seem to be nearly as important to Kovac as "general devilment."

This show is in the fine old tradition of movie journalism where publishers topple empires and reporters do all the district attorney's work for him. But what bugs me about this adventure series is the bop dialogue of the malevolent characters Kovac encounters. "Not once did any of 'em hustle me for any grab," says an ex-con, meaning the guys haven't tried to charge him money for protection. "Why get salty, Dad? Cool it" exclaims another hipster to Kovac.

The motives are questionable but at least the talk is decently unintelligible.

MISS CONSTANCE JEANNE VALONE

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Valone, of Pleasantville, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Constance Jeanne, to Charles Raymond Tuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Tuck, of East Titusville. The bride-to-be is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gheres, Pleasant twp.

Miss Valone, who formerly resided in Warren with her parents and attended schools here, graduated from Pleasantville high school in the class of 1956. She and her fiance are both employees of Sylvania Electric near Pleasantville. No date has been set for the wedding.

Area Sports

CAGE PLAY OPENS SATURDAY
The Warren high school Dragons, under Coach Joe Massa, will initiate the 1958-59 basketball season in the Warren area Saturday night when they face a veteran Erie Academy five at 8:15 on the Beaty Jr. high hardwood.

Two preliminary contests have been scheduled to add to the opener. At 6:15 o'clock East Forest, coached by former Warren high star Dick Finley, and the Warren Jayvees will jump center. And at 7 o'clock there will be an exhibition game between two of the Y-City League teams, the Style Shop and the Blueberry Inn.

At press time Coach Massa was still up in the air as to his starting five for Saturday night, but will likely be relying heavily on his five returning lettermen. The returning veterans are Nicky Creola, Mark Peterson, Don McKelvy, Bill Brumagim, and Bill Mervine. Other members of this year's varsity are Doug Lind, Joey Massa, Jack Lobdell, Craig Johnson, Mick Cashman, Gary Hunter, Dick Wilson.

Coach Jack Komora, Lions coach for about 30 years, will visit Warren with plenty of speed in Blanchard and O'Connor, and for height on the board he has 6-3 Chuck Deiber.

Next Tuesday the Dragon cagemen will journey to Youngsville for the Eagles opener and on the same night Sheffield will entertain Marienville. Tidioute opens at home against Randolph on Dec. 5 and Northern Area will march onto the floor the first time on Dec. 9 at Warren.

STYLE SHOP DUMPED IN CITY LEAGUE OPENER

The trio of Bob Reese, B. Schenk and Dick Danielson combined in a 46-point scoring effort as the Blueberry Inn trounced the Style Shop, 66-38, in the YMCA-City Basketball League opener on the "Y" floor Monday night.

In the evening's nightcap the Struthers Hose quintet laced G. G. Greene's, 67-27, behind the hot 22-point scoring pace set by Hartnett.

A pair of games slated for next Monday shows Bova's against the Style Shop at 7 o'clock and Greene's against the Blueberry five at 8.

GRAPPLERS START DEC. 18
Coach Hal Miller is working his Warren high grapplers into shape for the opening meet with Oil City on the Oilers' mats Thursday, December 18. The local grunt and groaners will then be idle until the return match with Oil City at Warren on January 8.

ENTER, THE HORDE
There will be shooting in those hills come Monday and antlered deer will be on the run. The bucks are legal until December 13. Then 15,000 special doe license holders, or those who have not knocked down a buck, will swarm over the woodlands, for three days, December 15, 16, and 17.

As far as this area is concerned the deer brought down don't add up to much, but the dollars the thousands bring to our cash registers that's good hunting. And there is no limit.

TO HOST BEARDSMEN
The Warren Style Shop team will play host to the popular House of David quintet for an 8:15 contest Wednesday evening, December 3, on the Beaty floor.

Coach Mel Bines has announced that Dick Koebley, Dick Hartnett, Bill Massa, Bob Koebley and Hud Berdine will comprise his starting lineup. Other players on the night's roster are Dave Berdine, Ed Lindberg, Bob Kolesar, Ed Rickerson, Jerry Leonard and Bob Swanson.

NATIONAL LOOP PLAY

The Lakers dribbled past the Nationals, 39-27, and the Royals trampled the Warriors, 44-36, in YMCA-National League action on the "Y" court Saturday night.

Bonavita and Bliss scored 15 and 12 points respectively to pace the Lakers. Smith racked up 10 to head the losers of that contest. In the second game Casler tipped in 12, Massa and Johnson scored 11 for the victors. It was F. Haer's 16 and J. Larson's 13 that topped the Warriors' performance.

JUNIOR ACTION KEEN

Action was plenty keen in YMCA-Junior loop play in the past week. Saturday Doug Wilson fired 17 counters through the rim to lead the Hawks over the Celtics, 36-30. Arnold was best for the losers with 13. A second contest saw the Knicks nudge the Pistons 33-30 on 14 and 10-point performances by Crump and Johnson respectively. The Pistons' Don Wilson recorded 13 points.

Last Thursday night the Pistons used the foul line to squeeze past the Hawks by a narrow 35-34 margin. The winners were successful 11 times from the free-throw stripe, while the Hawks scored their total completely from the field.

Haer tallied 13 and Don Wilson 12 for the Pistons, but the night's laurels went to the Hawks' Doug Wilson for a blistering 28-point show.

GRA-Y LEAGUE OPENS

East Street handed North Warren a 24-21 set-back in the Gra-Y cage opener Saturday. D. Lawton registered 12 marks for the winners, while L. Loomis helped North Warren the most with eight.

A SELECT 400

If you are not one of those who has made the 400 club by bringing in an ursus americanus there are two days left. The season on black bears closes at sunset Saturday.

Each year between 150,000 and 200,000 seek this big animal in the northern counties, but only about 400 of them bring him in. And then they learn something about handling this much limber, dead weight.

Because of the percentage, such a kill is very much desired by many hunters. And many are especially proud if they knock over one of the rare cinnamon-colored animals.

Husky males run up to 400 pounds and the females go as high as 250. They are a little over two feet high at the shoulder and about six to eight feet long from nose to tail. They can look very imposing when standing erect.

They mate in June or July, and the young are born in mid-winter. The mother may be found in a log, a cave, under an overhanging ledge, or depression of some sort. The cubs are hairless and weight only 6 to 12 ounces. But they have fur on them and have grown to five or ten pounds when the family comes out for spring.

The cubs stay with mother until fall when they may be as large as sixty pounds. Meanwhile, she trains them to live in the woods, and is very protective. In fact the only dangerous bears are those with cubs and cornered or wounded ones. But they are not to be trusted and the best policy is to save your Carnegie technique for others and use your gun on bruin.

This ultra modern home is equipped with radiant electric heat and insulated with insul-wool, the bonded insulation. Enjoy the modern convenience of electric heating in your home. Electric heat is fully automatic, convenient, clean and draft-free. Each room has individual thermostat controlled heat.

Bears have a wide selection of food which may explain why some people like their meat and others do not. If the bear you eat has existed mostly on plants, berries, and nuts, it may not be hard to swallow. But if he has taken aboard a diet of strong meat and fish he can be a very strong dish.

A wounded bear can be very unpleasant. We suggest you do not hunt alone and that you avoid bear balls in a shotgun. A good rifle is best, and safest. Balls can bounce off a charging bear's skull and get lost in fatty areas.

Pumping balls off an approaching bear can become very disturbing . . . especially when he fails to stop charging. Stop him with a slamming rifle bullet.

RIVER ACCESS PLANNED
The Pennsylvania Fish Commiss-

sion continues its efforts to provide more lakes and to assure public access to the major streams and rivers. Included in recently made plans are the purchase of two more areas along the Allegheny river. Just where, we do not know.

The Commission does not list the Columbus dam among the several lakes which it plans to construct. But it is reconstructing the Mud Dam pond in Wyoming county. Lakes will be built on Opossum creek in Cumberland county, Hammer creek in Lancaster county, and Scrub Ridge in Fulton county.

ENTER THE TRAPPER
The most popular of the fur-bearing animals in Pennsylvania became legal game last Saturday. The season on mink and muskrat continues until January 17. And don't forget the metal tags on your leg-snappers.

YOUR DOCTOR Speaks About FLUORIDATION

To Our Patients and Friends:

We should like to contact each of you individually. Inasmuch as this is an impossibility we take this means. You have trusted our judgement in the past, both individually and collectively. We ask you to believe now that our judgement in support of fluoridation is sound.

We Believe:

That fluoridation of the water supply in the amount of 1 part per million will not prove harmful in any way to either young or old.

That fluoridation will reduce tooth decay up to 65%.

We base this belief on studies which have been carried out over the past 50 years and have stood the test of time.

Remember: We and our families will be using the same water supply.

We urge all of you to write or call your councilman in support of fluoridation.
